A BIBLIOGRAPHY OF GREEK COIN HOARDS

INTRODUCTION

The title of this volume is self-explanatory, but it does not convey that an attempt has been made to provide more than a bibliography connotes. This foreword is an endeavor to make the aim and some of the limitations clear.

As a bibliography, it was felt that the foremost aim should be saving the time of the trained student. Each hoard is listed under the name of the place from which it is said to have been derived, and these place-names are arranged in alphabetical sequence. The modern form of the place-name is used—e. g., Reggio is preferred to Rhegium. Cross-references avoid complications when the names dif-

	fer radically—for example, for Naxos, see Schizo. Manifestly, it has been necessary to use the form of the place-name under which the hoard has been published, even though that be an Anglicised or an Italianized or any other than the native form of the name. This often brings difficulties in transliteration of Turkish, Balkan and Asiatic names, and no hard and fast rule that is consistent has been found. When the find-spot is not known, it has been expedient in some cases to enter it under the district, e. g. Crimea; with others, and especially when the section from which it has come is very large, under UNKNOWN locality—cf. this caption. The geographical index helps to remedy the indefiniteness. The procedure of the various authors who have discussed these hoards from unknown localities is not uniform, and in consequence consistency has been impossible without doing violence to the prescription that each hoard be given the location-name under which it was published. The effort has been to assign to them the caption most likely to be sought. The year of finding is also given in order to provide a simple means for distinguishing between finds made in the same locality.

When a date for the burial of a hoard has been assigned, that is given. When this has not been done in the original publication of the hoard, the date supplied by a later article is sometimes given in parentheses. Any dating, however, should be verified, and this is especially true for articles of many years' standing. Examining these dates critically would have exceeded the scope of this bibliography. They are given primarily as an indication of the period of the hoard. When there is no dating, this may be supplied by anyone studying that hoard.

On the same line with the date is given the number of coins found and the metal. Then follows a list of the cities or rulers represented—generally limited to the names of the mints, although sometimes a fuller description is attempted. The identifications or descriptions are those published. In the older publications, the danger of accepting the assigned attributions is one against which there is hardly need to sound a warning—every experienced worker knows how undependable they are. When an important coin is in question, it may be re-identified if it has been illustrated, or when its disposition has been given—otherwise when any weight is being placed on its presence in a hoard, the argument must depend on the reliability of the one publishing the hoard. The next line is reserved for the disposition of these coins, and when this is not known, the space is left as some may have a fuller knowledge on this point than the compiler. In giving the present whereabouts of a hoard, either in part or as a whole, the practice of referring to national collections, at “Paris”, “Athens”, etc., has been followed.

The bibliography proper is given next. Here the effort has been to abbreviate no more than is consistent with clarity of reference. Secondary references and reprintings are often given for anyone who may not have both articles; so, too, when there is a translation. References by other authors are quoted, even though very brief, not only because they sometimes provide information which has come to light since the earlier publication, but to save time in finding those references. By some it will be thought that "excessive zeal" has been shown in including certain hoards about which the information is scanty, but because the possible uses to which this material may be put are so varied and so difficult to foresee, the establishing of any consistent criterion is well-nigh impossible, and the decision has been against their omission. When the coins in a hoard are illustrated, that is indicated by the word "Plate" placed at the end of the appropriate article. This may mean that part of a plate, or more than a single plate has been used for this particular article. Such illustrations, when photographic in form, eliminate controversy as to die or to variety—if in addition the present whereabouts of the coin is known, one can proceed on a sound basis of fact.

To afford greater ease in referring to this material, two indexes are placed at the end. The first lists alphabetically the names of the mints and rulers represented in these hoards. Anyone studying the coinage of Himera, for example, can ascertain the hoards in which the money of this city has been found. From this index, one can refer fairly easily to the find-spot of a hoard whose name may have been forgotten, provided of course, that there is some knowledge of the contents of that particular hoard.

The second index classifies the find-localities by districts. Hoards discovered in Italy are brought together; so with those found in Asia Minor, Crete and elsewhere. This index should aid in locating hoards whose find-spots are indefinite.

It has been necessary to rule out finds of single coins, notwithstanding their significance. It has also proved necessary to eliminate the description of coins found in the course of excavations—sporadic discoveries of single pieces or of a small number which have no pretensions to having formed a hoard. One exception is made with the coins found at Pergamum—one or two others for the Vicarello and similar deposits. It is worthy of note that coins found in the course of excavations are often kept together in the museums to which they have gone. This is done at the National Numismatic Museum at Athens. Many of these pieces—usually much more than half—are so encrusted or defaced as to make recognition impossible, but in establishing facts regarding the circulation of certain issues, information of great value may often be obtained from such material. The sites on which there were finds of numismatic material preserved at Athens are as follows: Amphiareion, Corcyra, Delphi, Delos, Epidaurus, Imbros, Ithaca, Olympia, Corinth, Tenos, Thasos, Thermou. There are a few other sites of less importance.

In deciding questions of what might be included as Greek, Head's Historia Numorum has been followed, although there has been a slight letting down to embody some valuable material to be found in the bibliographies of Blanchet and Forrer for Gaulish coins, and of Dessewffy for the barbaric issues in the Balkans.

Strictly speaking, a bibliography would be concerned only with material which has been published. But where it has been possible to learn of forthcoming articles, they have been included. Descriptions of hoards in the Museums of Athens and Constantinople have been included even though they have not been published, and despite that there is no immediate prospect of their publication. This is also true for some of the hoards for the details of which I am indebted to Prof. Orsi.

The extended scale on which it has been possible to prepare this bibliography is due to aid received from many to whom I would make grateful acknowledgment. First of all, I would acknowledge the invaluable aid given by Miss Margaret C. Meagher, the Assistant Librarian of the American Numismatic Society. To her patience and zeal in searching out much of the data and in recording and verifying the many references, this volume is its own abundant testimony. From Professor Dr. Kurt Regling of the Berlin Museum, were received many of the references listed herein—especial importance attaches to the records of hoards in the Museum at Constantinople, which it is to be hoped will be fully published by him in the near future. To Mr. Edward T. Newell, I am grateful for many facts regarding hoards with which he has come into touch in his journeyings, as well as for his constant interest in the gathering of the data herein contained. He has also given most generously of his time and knowledge in settling questions which have arisen. From Prof. Orsi much information regarding hoards found in Sicily was obtained. From M. Michel P. Vlasto many very helpful notes were received. The data regarding coins in the Athens Museum was gathered by me from the careful records kept by the late Dr. Svoronos. Grateful thanks are due to the authorities of that Museum, and especially for personal aid given by Dr. Oikonomos.

It is hardly to be hoped that a reference work involving the copying of so many names and page-numbers, can be printed without error. If, however, the monograph serves to facilitate study and increase the interest in Greek coin hoards, the objective will have been gained.
